LIST OF CONTRIBUTORS

Thomas J. Butko is a sessional instructor at the University of Alberta. His dissertation, focused on Islamic fundamentalism in Palestine, was titled 'Revelation or Revolution: A Gramscian Approach to the Rise of Political Islam in Palestine'. His areas of interest include Islamic fundamentalism, the Israeli–Palestinian conflict and Middle East politics.

Jonathan B. Isacoff is Visiting Assistant Professor at St. Joseph's University. He teaches and conducts research on international security, historiography, the Arab–Israeli conflict, and the global environment. He is currently working on a book project examining historical interpretation and international relations theory.

Tami Amanda Jacoby is a research fellow at the Centre for Defence and Security Studies and assistant professor in the Department of Political Studies at the University of Manitoba. She has published articles on the Arab–Israeli conflict, women's movements in the Middle East, ethnic civil conflict, and Canadian foreign policy. A forthcoming book deals with women's organizing in zones of conflict.

Lenore G. Martin is professor and chair of the Department of Political Science at Emmanuel College and Associate at the Weatherhead Centre for International Affairs at Harvard University where she co-chairs the Middle East Seminar. She is the author of The Unstable Gulf: Threats from Within (Lexington Books, 1984) and the editor of New Frontiers in Middle East Security (Palgrave, 2001). Her forthcoming co-edited book, The Future of Turkish Foreign Policy, is being published by MIT Press.

Brent E. Sasley is a doctoral candidate in political science at McGill University. His research includes Middle East security issues, Caspian Sea energy politics and international politics and security.

Jeffrey Sosland has taught at Georgetown University, George Washington University and the University of Missouri. He was also a research and post-doctoral Fellow of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

Bassam Tibi is professor of international relations at Georgia–Augusta University in Göttingen, Germany. His recent books include Challenge of Fundamentalism (University of California Press, 1998) and Islam Between Culture and Politics (Palgrave and St. Martin's Press, 2001).