

Contents

Introduction	page 1
The project and purpose of this book	4
Previous research and theoretical points of departure	5
Affects, emotions, feelings	8
The lifeworld	12
Swedish scandals in an international perspective	15
The low level of corruption and the high level of trust in Sweden	17
The meaning of the concepts	21
Bricolage as a method	23
A methodological experiment	25
Flashback Forum	26
The interviews	27
1 In the middle of the media storm	31
The food-and-sleep clock	31
The paradox of visibility and loneliness	35
The branding and the escape	40
Shame, self-contempt, and laughter	48
Lies and damned lies	58
Family, love, caring	63
Fellowship-of-the-hounded letters	68
How things change	72
Concluding comment	75
2 Gossip, rumour, and scandals	77
Mediated orality	77
Chronique scandaleuse	81
Gossip and scandals in today's media system	85
Digital town squares	87

The rumour about Under-Secretary of State Ingmar Ohlsson	89
Hot topics	96
The spatial and the social dimension	101
The role as an exemplum	104
Concluding comment	105
3 Floorball Dad	107
Confusion	110
Anxiety, fear, and community	115
A child's sense of vulnerability	118
The police interrogations	119
The pale cast of thought	120
News legends	123
Passing-down and narrative contagion	126
Fake news as folklore	128
Concluding comment	129
4 The journalists and the rabbits	131
The objectivity talisman	132
Scepticism – media scandals, do they exist?	136
Undignified behaviour and a lack of independence	139
The art of justifying one's actions	143
Honour, fame, and rabbits	149
Feeling empathy	154
Concluding comment	163
Concluding words	165
Appendix	169
Bibliography	182
Index	197